

EARTH MOTHER'S WEDDING ALBUM

Even if you're not the Halloween party or Shriner's Convention type, it's possible to put on a costume and not feel funny. That, and getting married, is what happened June 5th in a secluded canyon north of Malibu. Theresa St. Clair (Earth Mother: RAGS/1) walked to her wedding in white. Jack Rumbaugh, the groom, rode in on a white stallion with pages and trumpeters leading the way. After the ceremony, the feast: roast turkey legs, sliced beef and ham, ripe avocado halves, marinated mushrooms, enormous strawberries, pineapples, melons, freshly baked breads—all in heaps, and no utensils save piles of linen napkins. Here is the couple and some of their family and a few of their guests.

These pages of Rags are copyrighted by Baron Wolman and the authors,
and cannot be reproduced without permission.

EARTH MOTHER'S WEDDING ALBUM

These pages of Rags are copyrighted by Baron Wolman and the authors,
and cannot be reproduced without permission.

Photos by Baron Wolman

