

on the street

LARRY SULTAN

Chicken Charlie has been helping people on Chicago's Near North Side to smile for 20 years. One of the original "Street Theatre" performers, at his last peace march appearance Charlie kept an audience captivated (with two baby dolls and a telephone dangling around his neck) by squeezing a few blues riffs of his funky old accordion. Placing his fat chicken gently on top of his head is Charlie's trademark finale.

These pages of Rags are copyrighted by Baron Wolman and the authors, and cannot be reproduced without permission.

CHUCK STEPKIN

Grant Avenue Street Fair
San Francisco

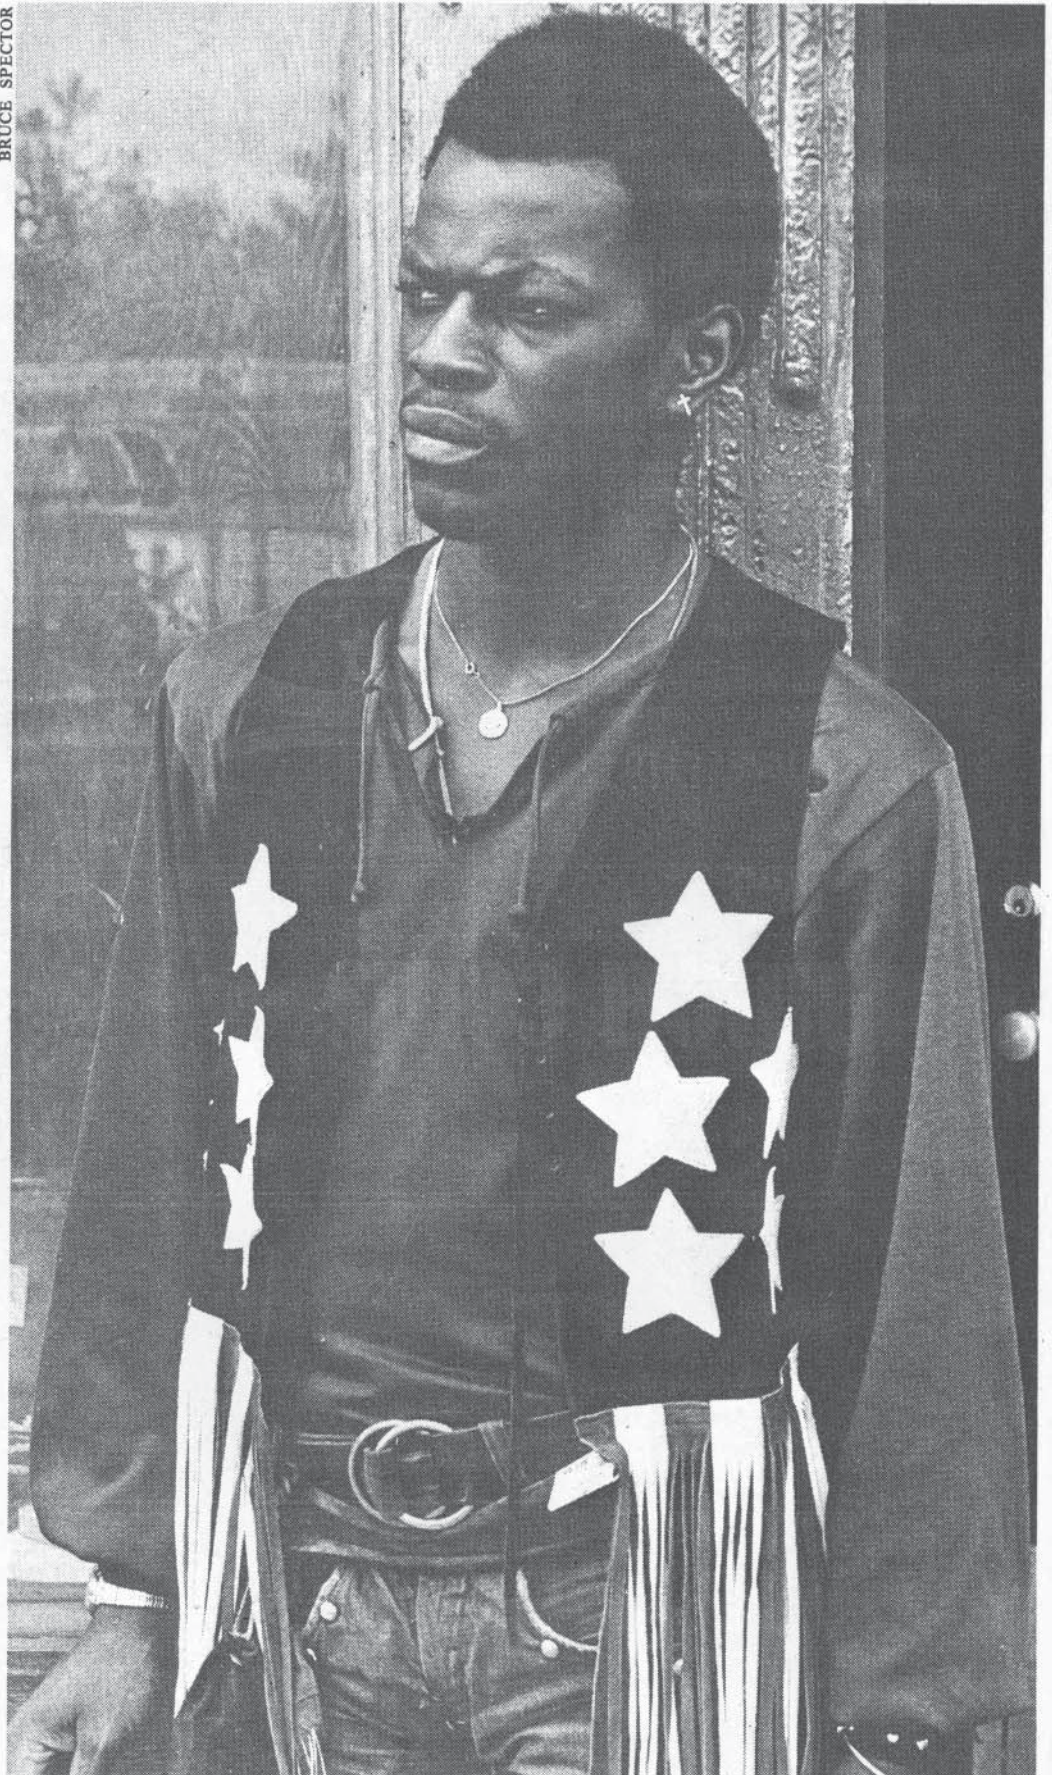

on the street

CHUCK STEPKIN

What makes these three hep instead of hip?
Answer: They are all smoking cigarettes.

BRUCE SPECTOR

Symbolic uniform—stars, stripes and a golden cross—Houston St, NYC.